The Korean Kid by Rochelle Nicholls

Korea - the first war of the jet age

The pilots of No. 77 Squadron RAAF were among the first into the skies. Jim Kichenside joined them with just 8 hours experience in the Gloster Meteor, flying for his life against an enemy equipped with the latest in air power.

“The Korean Kid” retraces Jim's journey from deadly Korean skies to the frozen snows of Antarctica and the jungles of South East Asia - a memoir of Australia's baptism of fire into the modern jet era.
